

Robert Gascoigne is an emeritus professor of the School of Theology of Australian Catholic University. He is a past president of the Australian Catholic Theological Association and was Australian representative on the Asian regional committee of the Catholic Theological Ethics in the World Church network (2012-18). He is the author of a number of publications on Christian faith and contemporary society including The Public Forum and Christian Ethics (Cambridge University Press, 2001) and The Church and Secularity: Two Stories of Liberal Society (Georgetown University Press, 2009), as well as Freedom and Purpose: An Introduction to Christian Ethics (Paulist Press, 2004).